The Northwest. There is good ground for the belief that the Atlanta Intelligencer represents the general sentiment of the Secessionists of the South in protesting against a reconstruction of the Rebel Government so as to include the Northwestern States, There has lately been considerable discussion of this embryo question in both sections, and the opinion seems to be the next thing to unanimous that such a confederation is not to be reckoned possible, We have spenied a House in the city of New York even though it should rest alone with the people of the South and West. The Tobacco and Western Produce, Georgia paper declares that the admission of any Free States into the Confederacy would not only be repugnant to her. D. Watts, of the firm of Wetts, Given & Co.
of Feducah, long familiar with Tobacco, will take

t. Crane, of Crane and Brown, Evansville, will sake charge of the Produce business.

slavery question which has brought on the war. This expression is based on

> ing to some misrepresentations of his position, stated he was "not in favor of States of the Northwest. He was, however, in favor of a military league, offensive and defensive, with any of the Northwestern States that would lay down their arms. His resolutions declare that the Confederate States will never consent to any plan for reconstructing the Federal Union; that the Confederate States cannot agree to negotiate at all in regard to a suspension of hostilities, except upon the basis of unconditional recognition of their independence; that after separation the Confederate States would consent to a commercial treaty with all the States in the Union except New England; that the Confederate States would consent to a league, offensive and defensive, with the several States which have recently manifested a change of public sentiment, upon their stipulating for desisting at once from the further prosecution of the war, and renouncing all political connection with New England; and that the Confederate States will guaranty the peaceful and uninterrupted navigation of the Mississippi and its tributaries to the States bordering thereon, which shall have declared their inclination to withdraw from the prosecution of the war. These are the propositions of a peace man in the rebel Congress! They have been referred to the House Committee on Foreign Relations, and may or may not be reported back for passage. The plain meaning of these resolutions is to mane ve for four separate and independent confederacies out of the old Union -the New England States to form one. the Middle, Northern and Western States t, form another, the slave States a third, and the Pacific States and the Territories west of the Rocky Mountains to con ap, Letter, Manilla and Wrapping stitute a fourth. How does the Northwest like that picture? What have the citizens of Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesoto done that they should be thought so humble as to accept such terms of peace as these? It will be seen that there is not one word about any surrender whatever on the part of the Southern Confederacy? There is no compromise no modification of any of the demands of the rebellious States. For the possession of the privilege of navigating the Mississippi river and its tributaries, the Northwest is to become the mere tool and catspaw of the Southern radicals in making war upon New England; and, antecedent to any negotiations, this section is to place itself in a condition of absolute helplessnecs, at the same time that it connives at the most gigantic treason the world has ever known. The Northwest is to take its soldiers from the Union side of the conflict and transfer them to the disunion side, and for this, for sooth, it is to enjoy what of right and of law belong to We are to transfer the war to the free States, and inaugurate armed civil

A Soldler's Opinion of an Armistice. An Indiana soldier in Nashville, Ten- We have now, and will keep, on hand a complete nessee, writing to his family in Indianapolis, after describing the sigh s to be seen there, says:

"On my way to camp I came upon a very large house, before which a guard was standing. I inquired what was going on there. He said the building was the penitentiary and that the said the building was the penitentiary, and that it was full of rebel prisoners. He told me to walk in if I desired to, which I did. The first salutation I received was from a rebel prisoner, who said: 'How are you, Yan-kee?' I paid no attention to him. Presently he said: 'How are you, soldier?' and commenced talking to me. He informed me that there was no use to fight any longer-admitted that they could not whip us, and asserted that we could not whip them. He said that the rebels were tired of this war, and believed there would be no more fighting, for the North had asked for an armistice, and that, in the meantime, the difficulties would be settled by a compromise.

"I came to camp, and have been thinking over what the rebels said to me about the armistice and compromise. I cannot see, for my life, what the North wants of an armistice at this time, when everything seems to be in our favor. The rebels acknowledge that they can't stand the pressure that the Union army is making upon them. The men are deserting by fifties and hundreds at a time and coming to our lines to give themselves up almost every day. They all tell the same story, too, of destitution, discouragement and demoralization. Atter studying the matter over awhile, and looking a little deeper into it, I have come to the conclusion that their own stopping a Renalt or Slight friends at the North have been making Sold in its just stage; that which these propositions to them and not our in the beginning would yield to a Government. The Northern rebels know mill remedy, if not attended to, scon their own condition, but are too big cowards to come out boldly and fight for their principles; so they take this sneakdone so but for putting down this rebellion now and forever, and restoring the authority of the Government. [Special Dispatch to the Chicago Times. Unconstitutionality of Black Laws--zen s Negroes Have Rights of Citi-

Frechip. DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 2. Judge Gray of the District Court, today read his decision in the habeas corpus case of the negro Archie P. Webb. The court house was filled by an anxious audience, and the reading of the decision was listened to with breathless attention. The Judge held that under the Constitution of the United States, a free negro is entitled to the rights of citizenship, that Archie P. Webb is a free negro, and as such entered the State of Iowa; that the act of 1851, under which he had been re-arrested and imprisoned, was in flagrant violation of the old constitution then in force, and the new, which is now the fundamental law of the State, and overrides the plainest principles of the common law. He held the act to be null and void, and his decision, therefore, was that Archie had been unwarrantably arrested and imprisoned, and must be immediately set at liberty.

The opinion had been prefaced with care, and will be published in full. Thus has ended a wicked scheme of a gang of semi-traitors to inaugurate a general system of persecution against the free negroes in this State, and to that extent embarrass the execution of the President's emancipation proclamation in the Mississippi Valley.
